PROTESTING LANDFILL—Members of Stop the Dump, from left, President Mavis Newell, Denise MacDowell and Ruby Bishop distribute literature on a proposed landfill to be located in the Dubuission Community. Group members hope Hancock County residents will join their efforts to stop the location of the dump because garbage may be brought to the landfill on barges through the Bay of St. Louis. (Staff photo by Brenda Heathcock)

Garbage may come through Bay to Harrison County landfill

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Stop the Dump picketers did not carry signs Tuesday in a visit in Bay St. Louis but they did distribute literature about the proposed landfill in the Dubuission Community.

The group brought along a coffin display complete with wreaths to help get the message out about what effects the landfill will have on the entire Gulf Coast.

Waste Management Inc. of Mississippi recently purchased a 1,000-acre tract of land near the west border of Hancock County and have acquired permits to construct a landfill on 70 acres of this parcel.

But Mavis Newell, president of Stop the Dump, doesn't think Waste Management plans to stop with just a 70-acre dump.

Newell said Tuesday, she had received information from a resident of property near the Rouses Bridge who confirmed an offer by Waste Management to purchase property which could be used as a landing on the Wolf River.

"When they get this property, garbage can be brought in from all over the United States to be disposed of at the landfill," Newell said.

The Mississippi Gulf Coast will be the "garbage capital of the world," she added.

"People in Bay St. Louis will get to see the garbage brought in right through the bay," Newell said.

At the landfill site, garbage may be disposed of in pits 15-40 feet deep and as tall as 80 feet tall.

The Stop the Dump group has been working for more than a year to prevent the location of the landfill in the Dubuission Community and are currently appealing the permit in Harrison County Chancery Court.

The 1,000-acre site which was sold to Waste Management for the landfill site was a part of the Rutayik estate with 22 different Catholic charities as beneficiaries.

Hancock Bank is executor of the will and in that capacity assisted with the sale of the property and has come "under fire" by members of the Stop the Dump committee.

Leo Seal, Hancock Bank president, says the bank has acted in a prudent manner handling the estate in the way as directed in a court order.

The bank was not aware of the intention to use the property for a landfill at the onset of negotiations with Cardinal Real Estate which was acting for Waste Management, he said.

It was in the third month of a six-month agreement before the bank knew of the plans for the landfill, Seal said.

At this point the bank informed all 22 charities of the controversy arising over the proposed landfill and asked if there were any objections to the option, he added.

"We explained the dilemma and throughout the entire thing, the charities were involved in the decision," he said.

"We can not go and do something (as the executor of the will) and then tell the beneficiaries, here it is," Seal stated.

He also said the bank could not disregard the option to buy the land because of the intended use.

Seal said as executor the bank was directed to sell the property for the beneficiaries and could not have cancelled the option without possible legal repercussions.

"We also could have and would have been subject to suit by the beneficiaries, if the bank had not carried out the terms of the will," he added.

Bay St. Louis council okays high-tech park

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

The Bay St. Louis Council Tuesday approved a special use zoning district to allow construction of a high tech business park.

The vote to approve the zoning followed a four-hour public hearing on the issue in which many residents of the area where the high tech park will be located protested the special use district.

Also attending the meeting were residents in favor of the zoning change.

Approximately 50 people crowded in council chambers at City Hall and overflowed into the hall and porch.

The special use district zoning applies to a 22-acre section of land where Charles Ramsey, president of Bay Technical Associates of Bay St. Louis, plans to expand his business.

Charles Dickerson of Bay Tech, told the group the product which will be produced in the park is a clean, controlled product.

There is no noise, no pollution, no toxic chemical or hazardous materials used in making the products at Bay Tech, he said.

Bay Tech currently has 5,000 United States customers and does business in 30 different foreign countries, Dickerson said.

"Business projections indicate that by 1989 an additional 80,000 square feet of building space will be needed," he added.

Architect Bill Argus also spoke at the hearing regarding the high tech park and showed slides of numerous other parks of this type.

"We think we have something that will enhance the whole area and not create any more problems than those which would be caused by building houses on the property," he said.

Among the objections by the area residents was damage to the Old Spanish Trail during the construction and the increased traffic flow caused by workers at the park.

As needed, additional buildings could be constructed at the high tech park and an anticipated new 200-300 jobs will be available.

Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor J. Frankiewicz said if he lived in the immediate area he may not want the high tech park near his home.

"But it is not just a question of what is good for the neighborhood but for the economic development of the entire area," he said.

Frankiewicz also discussed the lack of large tracts of commercial property available for a development of this size anywhere in the city limits.

"Even taking the largest to parcels of commercial property available and adding them together you do not get a piece of property this size," he said.

Frankiewicz told the group, according to existing traffic estimates the full development of the site would only result in about 165 additional cars per day.

In conclusion, he said the capacity of existing utilities in the area is sufficient for the development and the proposed development would place less of a demand on the utility system than would residential development of the area.

He also recommended several restrictions including elimination of the St. Charles Street access, prohibiting construction traffic for the site from St. Charles Street, lighting PARK—Page 2A

Supervisors still awaiting report on 2-year shore protection study

By DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors is still awaiting a report from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers on a two-year shore protection study.

The board had planned to meet Monday with a Corps representative, Bob Martin, to discuss the study, which has been delayed.

The board members had expected the report several months ago, having requested it in August after receiving a Corps letter requesting the second year's funding.

At their Nov. 30 meeting, they had agreed to meet with Martin after Jeff Taylor of South Mississippi Planning and Development District had requested a written resolution asking for a report as soon as possible.

The board members had instead invited Martin to their Monday meeting.

Although County Engineer Larry Seal said he had contacted Martin and was told that the Corps representative would try to attend on Monday, Martin did not appear before the board.

The supervisors have invited Martin to the next meeting, scheduled for 9 a.m. Dec. 14, and have placed him on the agenda for 9:30 a.m.

The study was originally designed to determine the feasibility and best methods of repairing the sand berm and seawall in Hancock County.

In addition, the study may indicate some ways to keep the waters of the Mississippi Sound from undermining Beach Road.

However, a major purpose of the study was also to secure about $12 million in federal grant funds that the board has said must be obtained if the work is to be done.

Taylor, who served as a non-voting member of the Hancock County Sand Beach Technical Advisory Council, said he is concerned that the impending retirement of Senator John Stennis may make it difficult to obtain the grant funding in the future.

He had stated when he requested the resolution that he felt that any attempt to expedite the study should be made before Stennis retires, because Stennis has been one of the major forces behind the project.

Board members had visited Washington, D.C., during the last session of Congress to request assistance from the Mississippi Congressional delegation.

They had received pledges of assistance but the study remains behind schedule.

Although the board took the second year's allocation under advisement Aug. 14, $77,000 in seawall tax money had been approved for the first year.

Jim Head, executive director of Gulf Regional Planning Commission, which is serving as administrative agency for the funding, said he can provide a financial statement for the meeting with Martin, but added that he already knows that $20,000 of the $77,000 remains unused.

Head said the money is being held in an interest-bearing account.

Taylor said that indicates to him that the study is behind schedule, because if it were proceeding as planned the first year's allocation would be gone and second year funds would be being used.

In other business Monday, the supervisors:

—Heard but took no action on three industrial proposals by Robert "Buck" Ladner, a representative of Intermonetary Corporation and a candidate for the U.S. presidency; —Appointed John Rutherford Jr. to the Hancock Medical Center Board;

—Agreed to try to keep the courthouse post office box number from being changed after a legislatively mandated countywide re-addressing project takes effect and the new post office building on US-90 opens;

—Advised for bids for purchase and installation of new heating equipment for the Hancock County Welfare Department building on Necaise Avenue; and —Agreed to install additional signs directing the public to the Hancock County Animal Shelter on Gulfside Drive, as requested by the Hancock County Humane Society.

The board meets again at 9 a.m. Dec. 14.

MAIL BOXES INSTALLED—Bay St. Louis Postmaster Tom Hill checks new mail boxes recently installed at the new Bay St. Louis Post Office located on Highway 90 at the Bay St. Louis-Waveland city limits. The new post office will not be open until the middle of January. A feature of the new post office will be boxes for parcels which will enable people to pick up parcels after business hours and on the weekend. Postal equipment is currently being installed both in this post office and the downtown contract post office which is on Second Street. (Staff photo by Brenda Heathcock)

Small-business group forms new Guardian Advisory Council

The National Federation of Independent Business reports the formation of a statewide Guardian Advisory Council.

Members of the council are small-business owners who are active in establishing public policy and monitoring legislation affecting small businesses.

Indianola resident Dudley Burwell has been named chairman of the NFIB advisory council.

Burwell, former president of The Lewis Grocery Company, has been active in a broad range of business and governmental interests.

He has served as the past chairman of the board of the Mississippi Retail Merchants Association, chairman of the University of Mississippi Business School Advisory Council, and as president of the Business Industry Political Education Committee.

Burwell also served on the board of the Delta Council and is an active member of the Mississippi Economic Council.

As chairman of the council

Burwell will coordinate grass-roots legislative efforts in the state. Burwell also will bring small-business issues to the attention of Mississippi senators and representatives in their home districts.

In addition, Burwell will address national issues with U.S. Senators and representatives.

Council members will help develop issues' strategies and will work with NFIB/Mississippi's state director and other state groups interested in the same issues. At its first meeting held earlier this fall, council members discussed issues to be considered for the 1988 legislative session.

Those issues included placing limits on frivolous lawsuits, mandated health benefits, sales tax on services, self-insuring for workers' compensation, a state-run lottery and stiffer penalties for bad-check writers.

The National Federation of Independent Business has more than 4,600 members in Mississippi and more than a half million nationwide.

standing in the shoes of the person who designated us to represent them," Seal said.

"And we have to be extra careful because of possible legal repercussions," he added.

Seal further explained saying several years ago the bank was executor of a will for a man who was killed by one of his sons and a portion of the estate was left for this person.

As the executor of the estate, the bank had to see that this man's portion was secured for him although he was sent to Whitfield, Seal said.

The bank had no alternative than to follow the terms of the will even though many people believed the son who killed his father should not get an equal portion of the estate, he continued.

"If we had not looked after this man's interest and he had recovered and gotten out of Whitfield, he would have owned the bank," Seal said.

"Sometimes you are in the position of being damned if you do and damned if you don't," he added.

The bank did not gain anything from this property sale, he said.

"We did not finance it, we did not receive a commission on the sale and there was no benefit to the bank," Seal said.

"But we have received 20 to 30 calls from people who plan to take their money out of this bank and are telling others to do the same," he said.

House votes veterans extra protection

WASHINGTON—The House has formally approved a House/Senate compromise agreement that was developed to reduce the risk of foreclosure on homebuying veterans, to reduce a veteran's liability should he default on a low to moderately-priced home, and to enable veterans to purchase homes in today's higher-priced market.

"There is serious concern about the solvency of the VA fund which must pay claims arising from foreclosures and, above all, about the devastating effect of foreclosure on veterans," said Rep. Marcy Kaptur (D-OH), Chairwoman of the Veterans' Affairs Subcommittee on Housing and Memorial Affairs.

Though veterans who use the Veterans Administration home loan guaranty program have established what is considered to be an excellent repayment record, the number of foreclosures continues to rise. Kaptur attributes much of the overall increase to problems in economically-distressed areas of the country, such as oil-producing and agricultural states.

The compromise agreement, H.R. 2672, revises the formula used by the Veterans Administration to guarantee loans. The VA does not make home loans; it guarantees a lending institution that, in the event of default, it will pay off a certain amount of the loan. Currently, the formula is 60 percent, up to a maximum of $27,500. H.R. 2672 would authorize the VA to guarantee 50 percent on loans under $45,000 and 40 percent on loans over $45,000 and a maximum guaranty of $36,000 and a minimum guaranty of $22,500.

H.R. 2672 also requires the VA to provide more effective servicing and counseling when a loan goes into default, an area in which "the quality of service has deteriorated," according to Kaptur.

"At a minimum, veterans should be advised of the alternatives to foreclosure in light of their particular circumstances, including possible methods of curing the default, the veteran's and the VA's liabilities in the event of foreclosure and the availability of counseling," said Kaptur.

The agreement alters occupancy requirements by allowing a veteran or service member or his or her spouse to refinance a loan whether or not they reside in the home. The measure authorizes the VA to offer discounts to non-profit organizations that purchase VA foreclosed properties for use as homeless veteran shelters. Organizations that agree to use veteran employees to rehabilitate such properties under the Veterans' Job Training Act are also eligible for up to a 25 percent discount. Additional loans may be made to prospective purchasers who use the money to restore uninhabitable properties.

Veteran homeowners would receive extra protection should their loans be assumed and go into default. H.R. 2672 requires credit underwriting on prospective purchasers who wish to assume the original loan. It provides the veteran with automatic release from liability so long as the lender is advised and the purchaser agrees by contract to assume full responsibility for the loan.

The bill exempts the VA home loan guaranty program from Gramm-Rudman sequestration.

Christmas: The Winter Festival

Editor's Note: The following article resulted from a grant from the Mississippi Humanities Council to the Mississippi Press Association. The opinions expressed are those of the author and not of either organization.

By Michael L. Harrington
Associate Professor of Philosophy
University of Mississippi

Christmas is the Christian reformation of the pagan winter solstice festival: the pagan religious ideals were given a Christian blessing and survive to this day. Thus the Christmas holiday season became a living celebration of religious insight originating many centuries before the birth of Jesus of Nazareth.

Seasonal religious festivals commemorated major solar events. The sun, often considered a god or his dwelling place, is the source of life and so a symbol for the power of good. The changes in its cycle heralded the changes in the seasons of life. Any changes in solar activity had great significance and so were a reason for religious celebration.

The pagan winter festivals were held at the winter solstice—the time when the sun seems farthest away and the day shortest. For six months its light had been steadily diminishing. So when the sun changed its course, a festival of thanksgiving celebrated its return and so the victory of light and life over darkness and death. In Western Europe there were two such festivals: the Saturnalia in the South and the high feast of Odin (Yule-tide) in the North.

The Saturnalia honored the ancient Latin deity Saturn presiding over humanity during a golden age of prosperity. Since then both nature and humanity had degenerated. But in the never-ending cycle of existence, the reign of Saturn would come again. So the return of the sun was cause for rejoicing also for its prophesy of the returning Age of Saturn.

The Saturnalia was a season of gift-giving and partying from about 17-24 December: all ordinary business ceased and social distinctions were suspended. Even slaves were treated as equals signifying the equality of all men under the sun.

The Yule-tide Feast of Odin honored the warrior high-god of the Norse religion for several weeks near the end of the year. Large evergreens were brought into the great halls: holly and ivy symbolized the endurance of life in death and the immortality of the gods: huge feasts celebrated the joy of living.

Early Christianity celebrated the resurrection of its founder rather than his birth. Of the early events in his life, only the baptism marking the beginning of his ministry (the Epiphany) was commemorated and that on 6 January.

But in the 4th century arose a new religion worshipping the sun god Mithra who brought the victory of good over evil, the brotherhood of humanity and the immortality of the individual human soul. Mithraism made 25 December a religious holiday—"The Birthday of the Unconquered Sun"—and so the symbol of the return of the new spiritual light to the world.

So around 336 AD the Church at Rome responded to the Mithraic challenge by celebrating the birth of Christ on 25 December, despite the fact that there was no reliable authority for the holy nature of this date. The Eastern Church at Constantinople rejected this liberal observance and continued its commemoration of Christ's spiritual birth on 6 January.

Initially and in keeping with its other-worldly emphasis, Christian authorities shunned the festive Saturnalia in favor of somber rites celebrating Christ's life from Nativity to Epiphany. But such rituals failed to satisfy the festive needs and Christian authorities had little success in keeping parishioners from the pagan celebrations.

The Christianization of the pagan festivals began around 600 A.D. when Pope Gregory the Great instituted a brilliant evangelical policy: Pagan ideals and festivals were to be transformed into Christian practices wherever possible, since every ancient god was an anticipation of the Christian message.

So from the Roman Saturnalia to the Viking Yule, Christian missionaries turned the pagan winter solstice festivals into the Celebration of the Return of the Son. Pagan practices of gift-giving and feasting—as well as their symbols of evergreens, holly and ivy—were made Christian customs.

This policy's great success overshadowed the obvious expediency of making Christ's birth 25 December and the somewhat incoherent celebration of worldly pleasures in an other-worldly religion.

Only with the Protestant Reformation was there again concern that Christmas was a disguised pagan festival. Some Calvinists tried to ban Christmas: The Puritans under Oliver Cromwell made its celebration a crime and the early Pilgrims in the New World attempted to follow suit.

Not surprisingly, these attempts failed, since they had nothing to substitute for the joyful celebration of life present in Christmas customs. To investigate this and other Christmas topics, an excellent source is "A Righte Merrie Christmase," by John Ashten.

Today Christmas transcends both secular and sectarian origins to be a common symbol of human hopes in a season of more generous and abundant living.

Mrs. Edris Stechmann

On Monday Mrs. Edris Stechmann was laid to rest in Cedar Rest Cemetery.

Mrs. Stechmann had to have been one of the best known executive secretaries in the history of Hancock County.

She was a fixture at Coast Electric Power Association for 40 years after serving as a chief deputy clerk for the late Hancock County Chancery and Circuit Court Clerk A. G. (Red) Favre.

Her unique style of answering the telephone at Coast Electric, "Mr. Shattuck's Office," "Mr. Thomas' Office," "Mr. Occhi's Office," will always 'ring' in my ear.

An inspiration to many because of her dedication to God, family, job and fellowman, Mrs. Stechmann will long be remembered.

To her children, grandchildren, relatives, friends and associates at Coast Electric we can say she was a 'mighty lady' and will be missed by everyone.

Quotables by Cuevas

Have you noticed the nice new railroad crossing on Beach Boulevard in Bay St. Louis?

True, it took railroad workers several days to complete the task. It appears to give motorists the smoothest crossing ever at the location.

It would be nice to have other crossings in the area improved.

We can always recall the bouncing and bumping at Bookter and Washington streets and at Waveland Avenue.

Jerry Hlass, director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration at NSTL, will be the featured speaker at the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's annual Christmas Banquet on Friday.

The banquet will be held at the Diamondhead Country Club beginning at 7 p.m.

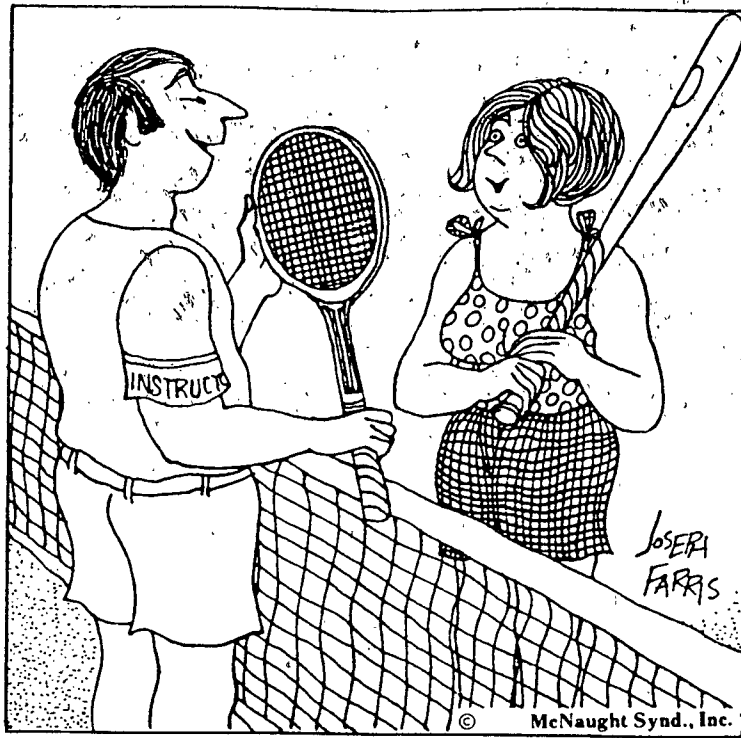

Hlass is scheduled to reveal future developments at NSTL and how they will affect Hancock County and the immediate area.

We have heard Hlass speak numerous times, and he is a very good speaker.

He has been a tremendous leader at NSTL, and many good things have happened at the Hancock County facility since he assumed leadership several years ago.

There are only a limited number of tickets for the banquet at $25 each, and if you haven't gotten yours yet, it may be possible a few are still available.

We hope to hear Jerry Hlass on Friday. See you at the banquet.

"This, I take it, is your first time out for tennis."

Holiday travelers beware, Mississippi is second most deadliest state

Current traffic fatality rankings from the Department of Transportation shows Mississippi as the second most deadliest state in the nation per vehicle miles traveled.

In 1986, 771 people were killed on Mississippi highways. Seven hundred and one (701) people have been killed this year as of Dec. 2, 1987.

"The fact that we are in the top ten most deadliest states is tragic; however we are in the top two," said Diane B. Taylor, executive director, Mississippi Seat Belt Coalition, Inc.

"What is even more frightening, is the fact that we are losing our future resources. Fifty-nine percent of the people killed in 1986 were under the age of 35 years old. In a state where economic development is a major concern, we cannot afford to keep losing the future work force."

"There is also a tremendous drain on our economy from this needless loss of life in Mississippi. Everyone pays for serious injuries and deaths in insurance and taxes," she said.

Of the 258 occupants killed during the first six-months of 1987, 98 percent were not buckled up. During the Thanksgiving holiday period, eleven people were killed and not one of them were wearing a seat-belt.

The Mississippi Seat Belt Coalition, Inc., with endorsements from the law enforcement, medical, and business communities, feel that a seat-belt law is the only responsible answer to this needless loss of lives.

"In all of the thirty-one states that have passed seat-belt laws, fatality rates are decreasing while the seat-belt use increases," Taylor said.

The Coalition and several private industries in Mississippi, such as Domino's Pizza (PRM Pizza, Inc.) and the Mississippi Power Company, will be presenting programs in December across the state focusing on encouraging a "Fatality-Free" period during the Christmas-holiday period.

"Safe driving involves not only defensive driving, but also responsible driving," said Ms. Taylor. "Responsible driving means no drinking and driving, and using the best protective tool available in cars today. That is of course, a seat-belt."

FACTS ON SEATBELTS

► Among front-seat passenger-car occupants, safety belts saved a total of 2,200 lives in 1986. Of those, safety-belt-use laws were credited with saving 1,450 lives. National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), 1987

► The probability of being involved in a motor-vehicle injury accident during a 75-year lifetime is better than 86 percent. (NHTSA), 1987

► There were 39,195 fatal accidents resulting in 43,825 fatalities in 1985. (Includes drivers or passengers in all types of motor vehicles, pedestrians and bicyclists.) (NHTSA), 1987

► There were 23,214 passenger-car fatalities and 5,834 light-truck fatalities in 1985. (NHTSA), 1987

► Approximately 3,363,000 people were injured in traffic crashes in 1985. (2,470 in passenger car accidents alone.) (NHTSA), 1987

► Approximately 100,000 injuries are mitigated each year as a result of states having passed safety-belt-use laws. University of North Carolina Highway Safety Research Center, 1987

► In 1985, 90 percent of the occupants killed in motor vehicle crashes were not wearing their safety belts.

(NHTSA), 1987

► Unrestrained passenger car occupants were twice as likely to receive moderate to critical injuries in the event of a crash as restrained occupants. (NHTSA), 1987

► Traffic crashes rank as the No. 1 killer of Americans ages 6-33. (NHTSA), 1986

► In terms of years of life lost to Americans (based on life expectancy data), injuries as a result of motor vehicle accidents exceed cancer by 1.1 million years and top heart disease and strokes by 900,000 years. Institute of Medicine, National Research Council and the National Academy of Sciences, 1985

► Of motor vehicle-related deaths, 86 percent occur during normal weather conditions. (NHTSA), 1987

► Less than one half of 1 percent of all injury-producing, passenger-car collisions involve fire or submersion. (NHTSA), 1984

► Most fatal crashes occur at speeds of less than 40 miles per hour. NHTSA, 1987

► Automobile accidents cost employers an average of $120,000 per death and $1.9 billion annually. National Highway Users Federation and the American Safety Federation (HUF), 1985

► The cost of all traffic deaths and injuries in the United States during 1984 was about $69.5 billion:

► $27.5 billion in property damage

► $15.2 billion in lost productivity

► $3.8 billion in medical costs

► $23.0 billion in other costs (such as insurance administration, legal and court costs and emergency services.) (NHTSA), 1986

► People who are thrown from their cars are 25 times more likely to be killed than if they stayed in their vehicle. More than three out of four people who were thrown from their vehicles in 1984 were killed. (NHTSA), 1986

► In 1980 alone, Social Security survivor benefits to the relatives of persons killed in motor-vehicle crashes were more than $643 million. (NHTSA), 1985

► Three out of every four traffic accidents happen within 25 miles of the home. HUF, 1984

► Traffic crashes cost the federal government $7.5 billion in 1980. The figure included: money paid to crash victims and their families through public-assistance programs; the costs incurred by the federal government when its workers are in crashes; tax losses; and the cost of government sponsored motor-vehicle safety programs. Similar spending by state and local government is $3.4 billion. (NHTSA), 1983

► Safety-belt-use legislation has been passed in 31 states and the District of Columbia, covering 198,504,000 persons. Traffic Safety Now, Inc., 1987

► It is estimated if 70 percent of passenger car occupants regularly wore their safety belts in 1985, 7,400 lives would have been saved and 135,000 injuries would have been avoided. (NHTSA), 1986

► Preliminary figures for 1986 indicated that 58 percent of all fatalities occurred in rural areas. (NHTSA), 1987

► Safety-belt use among drivers has risen from 14 percent in 1984 to 42 percent in 1987. Among states with safety-belt-use laws, 51 percent of motorists observed in 1987 wore their safety belts compared to only 27 percent in states without laws. (NHTSA), 1987

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

JACKSON—At least for the appearances of party harmony, the long-standing feud between Cong. Trent Lott and Sen. Thad Cochran over control of the Mississippi Republican Party has been sidetracked for the duration of Lott's U.S. Senate bid.

Some are even trying to revise history to make it appear that a Lott-Cochran feud never existed.

But anyone knowledgeable about state GOP politics is fully aware that the party has been split at least since 1980 into two wings, with Cochran heading the more moderate Republicans and Lott the conservative hard-liners.

The Cochran forces have been able to hold control of the party machinery despite several attempted assaults by the Lott forces to dislodge them.

It's evident now, however, that Lott has begun mending fences with the Cochran forces and significantly is getting a good reception to his peace overtures.

Even Clarke Reed, of Greenville, the former longtime Senate GOP chairman, and a close Cochran ally, whom Lott tried to oust in an unsuccessful coup attempt in 1980, is caught up in the unity spirit.

"I don't know of anybody that doesn't want Trent to win (the Senate seat being given up by Sen. John Stennis)," Reed said last week, "I know Thad certainly does."

Without recounting the old animosities in the GOP, Reed said, "whatever differences there have been, they fade away pretty fast when you have a common goal of trying to win back the U.S. Senate."

Some Lott loyalists have blamed Reed as being responsible for keeping Lott from running and winning the Senate seat Cochran now holds when Democratic Sen. Jim Eastland stepped down in 1978.

Reed has always maintained that the charge is spurious and that he had nothing to do with Lott's decision not to run. "There was no high drama or conspiracy," Reed says.

"The simple facts are that Thad decided he was going to run, regardless of whether Trent or anyone else (on the Republican side) ran."

Trent just decided he wasn't ready and that he didn't have something to fall back on if he lost, so he decided to stay in the House."

Even though Lott is now courting the Cochran forces, he obviously is still the darling of the far right of the Mississippi Republican Party.

This was evident when Lott made his recent hastily-arranged announcement for the Senate here in Jackson and among the few supporters invited to be present was W.D. Mounger, the Jackson oilman, who is the symbolic figure of the GOP arch-conservatives.

When Lott was questioned if Mounger's presence meant he was going to have a key role in the campaign, Lott said he "welcomed everyone, even Billy Mounger."

Republicans generally seem very optimistic about the Gulf Coast congressman's chances of winning the open Senate seat on the heels of the near-miss scored by Jack Reed in the recent governor's race.

However, Reed was a more broadly based candidate who appealed to white moderates and he had a valid claim of having worked for public education and social causes important to blacks. Even with that, Reed could not secure enough black votes he needed to win.

Lott would automatically have heavy baggage to carry in the black community since he voted consistently in Congress against extension of the 1965 Voting Rights Act, and had a role in seeking tax exemptions for segregated private schools.

The condition of Mississippi's and the nation's economy at the time of November, 1988 general election could be a crucial factor in determining how Lott is going to be able to sell his Reagan-style conservatism. By then, Reaganomics could very well be blamed by Mississippians for their economic plight.

Cochran was able to get an amazing 75 per cent of the white vote in his landslide victory over William Winter in the 1984 election, which Lott no doubt thinks he can duplicate. However, there was a very popular figure named Ronald Reagan at the top of the ticket in 1984 who won't be there in 1988.

Mississippi Democrats can also make a plausible case that the state shouldn't have two Republicans in the U.S. Senate.

REPORT

FROM THE OFFICE OF

ATTORNEY GENERAL

ED PITTMAN

Attorney General Ed Pittman urged the Legislature to amend state law and allow the state to make a claim for unclaimed property and funds held by federal agencies.

Pittman noted that the State Treasurer's Office announced Tuesday that over 3.3 million dollars in unclaimed funds held by banks, utilities, insurance companies and other businesses were reported in November. The Treasurer is searching for the rightful owners of these funds.

The state's Unclaimed Property Act, passed in 1982, requires that such funds be reported each November.

In addition to these funds held by agencies and businesses within the state, Pittman said, many thousands of unclaimed dollars are held by federal agencies.

Mississippi's Act exempts the United States government from the definition of "persons" who may be subject to claims.

The National Association of Attorneys General is studying the possibilities of litigation against the United States Government on behalf of the States for unclaimed funds, Pittman said.

In order to join that litigation, Mississippi must amend the Unclaimed Property Act and remove the federal exemption, Pittman said, adding that the amendment could lead to the collection of much-needed revenue for the State Treasury.

Applicants being interviewed for Training Academy director

The 15-member search committee to assist in the selection of the director of the Mississippi Law Enforcement Officers' Training Academy (MLEOTA) has interviewed 22 people to date for the position.

"The response has been overwhelming and quite pleasing to me personally. I believe this response reflects the desirability and respectability of the director's position," James L. Roberts Jr., commissioner of public safety, said.

The search committee, convened by Roberts in October, has met at the Department of Public Safety headquarters building in Jackson four times to interview training academy director applicants.

The search committee will recommend the three-to-five top candidates to the commissioner for final selection. The interview process evaluates the applicant's educational and training accomplishments, work experiences, and suitability to fulfill the total job description of the director of the MLEOTA.

"The search committee is performing its duties in a very diligent, professional and businesslike manner. There is no doubt that the applicant recommended to me for final selection will be the best in the search committee's opinion," Roberts added.

The tremendous response has caused the commissioner to extend the deadline for final selection in order to give the search committee time to interview all applicants.

The search committee may be interviewing applicants from as far away as Oklahoma and Ohio.

How the Christmas tree tradition began

Every year, over 40 million Americans bring home a natural Christmas tree to help create a warm, friendly setting for their Christmas celebration. But how did this tradition get started?

Historians have traced many sources that have evolved into the present-day custom of decorating a Christmas tree. Legends point to decorated trees that were used in winter celebrations long before there was a Christmas.

The Egyptians, for example, used to bring green palm branches into their homes in late December as part of the celebration of living things.

Romans trimmed evergreen trees with trinkets and topped them with icons of their sun god to celebrate the festival of Saturnalia.

Druid sorcerers celebrated the winter solstice by hanging apples and lit candles on oak trees.

In medieval Europe, the feast of Adam and Eve was held on Dec. 24th; a fir tree trimmed with apples called the Paradise Tree was the holiday symbol.

Although there are many possible explanations of the origin of holiday trees, it is generally agreed that the use of an evergreen tree as part of the Christian celebration of Christmas started 400 years ago in Germany and later spread to most of Europe by the early 19th Century.

The custom was brought to the United States by Hessian mercenaries during the Revolutionary War. The first recorded retail Christmas tree lot was set up in 1851 by a Pennsylvanian named Mark Carr. Carr hauled two ox sleds filled with trees from the Catskill Mountains to sell on the sidewalks of New York City.

Meanwhile, in Victorian England, the Christmas tree gained wide acceptance after the introduction of holiday fir trees in the Royal court.

The first White House Christmas tree was set up by President Franklin Pierce in 1853. But it wasn't until 1923 that President Calvin Coolidge established the National Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony on the White House Lawn that has since become part of the annual holiday observance.

Whatever the origin of the enduring tree symbol—which is older than Christianity and not exclusive to any one religion—it remains a part of our holiday heritage, engaging our senses of sight, touch, and smell. The tree evokes images of traditional past Christmases and annually rekindles those sentiments which are the very essence of the holiday season.

Update

Controlling Christmas Spending

By Janet K. Lukens
Coast Consumer
Management Center

Christmas joy can rapidly change to horror when the bills for excessive holiday spending start pouring in. To help keep the joy long after Christmas, consider preparing an expense sheet.

On the expense sheet, plan the amount of money needed to provide gifts for relatives, friends, teachers, and co-workers. Be sure to consider other holiday expenses such as postage, cards, entertaining, babysitters, extra food, and special clothes.

To get an idea of how much money you can afford to spend for Christmas in the month of December, subtract your living expenses and debt payments from your December salary. The balance may go toward meeting your holiday expenses.

For a happier Christmas season next year, begin to prepare now with the following tips:

- Budget a certain amount of money per month toward Christmas expenses and put the money in an interest-bearing account. A Christmas Club account can be a good way to save if it pays interest.
- Make it a practice to buy one gift per month.
- Make some of the gifts for others including handicrafts and baking.
- Substitute your time for your money by giving your time or talents as your gifts.
- Supplement your income with part-time or odd jobs and use the extra income for Christmas.
- Make a budget early in the year.
- Start a coin collection for a child.
- Save the comics from your newspaper to use for festive gift wrapping.
- Take advantage of after-Christmas sales for next year's gifts.
- Give a family heirloom with a written history.
- Shop from a prepared list.

"Anticipation" Chores Fill Gardening Time

By Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

Gardening activities have slowed to little more than clean up chores. All annual plants killed by cold temperatures should be removed from the garden or flower beds and composted.

Gardeners can continue to scrap for leafy greens from the garden as weather permits. Mulch garlic to give some protection from cold.

Use this slow time to get a soil test that will be especially important if you have a fireplace or wood heater and plan to throw the ashes on the garden. Wood ashes are like lime and your garden soil may not need liming at the rate you will be applying ashes.

Pine needles and leaves raked from lawn areas make excellent mulching materials for shrub beds. Place a layer 3 to 4 inches deep around shrubs to provide some winter protection.

Keep the garden hose handy so you can water dry plants and shrubs. Even though shrubs, perennials and ferns are dormant, they will die during the winter if the soil remains dry for very long.

December is about the last chance for planting spring flowering bulbs. Tulips can wait the longest if refrigerated, so make an effort to get bulbs like crocus, snowdrops, grape hyacinth, anemone, and all daffodils into the ground as soon as possible.

Daffodils prefer a low nitrogen-moderate phosphorus-high potash fertilizer, something with a ratio approaching 1-2-4 for N-P-K. Fertilizer placed directly under bulbs may burn them, so mix a small amount of fertilizer in the soil and plan to apply more when the shoots begin to show in the spring. Be careful when planting new bulbs in existing beds to avoid injuring previously planted bulbs.

As the 1988 plant and seed catalogs begin to arrive, take time to review your landscape and garden needs and wants. All too often our wants exceed our needs and we wind up with plants and seed that we don't need or for which we don't have space.

Catalog pictures are kind of like puppies and kittens. When we see them, they're so appealing we feel we just have to have one and don't think about where we'll put them or the care they require. Just this past week I saw some Silky Terrier puppies that tempted me, but fortunately I came to my senses and thought about the two dogs, cat and numerous birds I already have.

My Thanksgiving cacti performed beautifully. All five colors, pink, purple, white, orange and gold were in bloom at the same time for Thanksgiving week. As described in an earlier column, I left them out on the patio until they were heavily budded and only had to bring them in once for frost protection.

Review your landscape for weak spots resulting from shrubs that died or plants that haven't performed well, and make a list of what plants are needed. Take time to protect outdoor containers and pots made of clay. Many clay pots scale and crack as a result of freezing temperatures, so remove the soil and place them in a dry, protected area.

Grapevine wreaths made decorative additions inside the home and on doors during the holidays. While it is too early to completely prune muscadine vines, do some light pruning to make a few wreaths. Small wreaths decorated with bows make great gifts for teachers.

The Christmas season should be a happy time. Avoid injury and tragedy by checking all light strings before placing them on the Christmas tree. Keep real Christmas trees in water-holding stands while in the house and be sure to keep the tree and all holiday greenery and decorative plants away from the fireplace and heaters.

Holiday plants purchased for decoration or received as gifts will last through the holidays and even longer if kept where they receive some sun and away from excessive heat, extreme cold and drafts. Keep the soil moist, but not wet, and fertilize with a water soluble house plant fertilizer.

The varieties of poinsettia being grown now hold their red bracts so long that you may be tempted to discard the plant when Valentine's Day rolls around. Frequently, the red bracts outlast the green leaves.

Contrary to what some people think, the Christmas poinsettia is not a poisonous plant. Let's put that piece of misinformation to rest.

Acceptance tests completed for two shuttle engines

Full-mission-duration tests of Space Shuttle main engines 2022 and 2019 have been successfully conducted, completing the acceptance testing of the first two engines to fly on the next Shuttle mission.

The 520-second tests were conducted Nov. 21 on engine 2022 and Nov. 28 on engine 2019 at NASA's National Space Technology Laboratories (NSTL), Bay St. Louis, Miss. The tests were followed by complete examinations of the engines and analysis of test data, all of which showed that the engines performed within established standards.

"This is a major milestone and keeps us on course to deliver three engines within Kennedy Space Center's requirement for a June Shuttle flight," said Jerry Smelser, deputy engine project manager at Marshall Space Flight Center. The Marshall Center manages the main engine program for NASA.

At each stage of the test sequence, physical examination of the engines included checking for leakage from the oxidizer heat exchanger. It was leakage in that component which appeared in engine 2027 after its full-duration firing Oct. 10. The leak resulted in pulling engine 2027 from the lineup for STS-26. There has been no sign of leakage in engine 2022, and inspection of 2019 is in process.

"So far, we've accomplished six of the nine tests required prior to delivery of the three engines," Smelser said.

The third engine slated for STS-26 is being prepared to begin its three-test sequence of firings. It has been installed on the test stand from which engine 2022 was just removed.

Officials expect acceptance of the three flight engines for STS-26 to be completed in time for delivery to Kennedy Space Center prior to the first week of January.

$902,300 Awarded for SeaGrant program study

A grant of $902,300 has been awarded for the Mississippi-Alabama SeaGrant Consortium to continue its research program, according to Senator Thad Cochran.

Senator Cochran said the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) was making the grant to the consortium headquartered at Ocean Springs on the Mississippi Coast.

The agency said the funding would enable the Mississippi-Alabama consortium to continue its research on stone crab distribution, the survival and transport of viruses in fish and fisheries anthropology.

It will also allow the consortium to continue work on seafood processing and coastal education through outreach programs, NOAA said.

The agency said the grant to the Gulf Coast consortium was made under its SeaGrant program.

Mississippian wins photography award

A Mississippian and University of Southern Mississippi graduate has received the Scripps-Howard newspaper chain's top photography award for his work at its Memphis daily.

Forest native Jeff McAdory, 30, a staff photographer for the Memphis Commercial Appeal since 1984, took first-place honors in the in-house photography competition for Scripps-Howard's 14 daily newspapers.

He was named Scripps-Howard Photographer of the Year, based on selected photographs he took for the Commercial Appeal between mid-1986 and mid-1987.

McAdory earned a bachelor's degree in journalism, with an emphasis in photojournalism, from USM in 1979. He worked as a photographer for the Jackson Daily News from 1979 through 1983. In the spring of 1983, he was awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship for his photojournalism series in the Mississippi Delta.

Humane Society warns pet owners against potential holiday hazards

The Hancock County Humane Society, with assistance from Veterinarian Connie Clemons-Chevis, has compiled a list of potential hazards to pets that are commonly found in homes during the holiday season.

During the hustle and bustle of the holiday season, don't forget that there are many decorations, foods and objects which can be hazardous to your pets.

Some items to think about which might be included in the holiday celebrations and can be potentially dangerous are listed below:

► Dogs and cats have a propensity to eat tinsel. If you suspect such, and a pet shows loss of appetite, vomiting and pain in the abdomen, call a veterinarian. Surgery might be required.

► Electrical wires: Biting these can result in severe mouth burns, seizures, loss of consciousness and fluid accumulation in the lungs.

► Breakable ornaments and "angel hair": These can cause cuts in the mouth and esophagus.

► Dough ornaments: The high salt content can cause symptoms ranging from vomiting, diarrhea and dehydration to severe neurological problems. Contact your veterinarian.

► Turkey string: Dogs and cats are attracted by the turkey juices and eat it. This may require surgery.

► Turkey and chicken bones: Do not feed to animals at all!

► Rich foods: Turkey skins, stuffing and gravy—in short, fatty foods—can cause pancreatitis, which is very painful and may require hospitalization.

► Chocolate: This contains a compound that is toxic to pets and can cause vomiting, diarrhea, muscle tremors, seizures, rapid breathing and disorientation.

► Chocolate: This contains a compound that is toxic to pets, and can cause vomiting, diarrhea, muscle tremors, seizures, rapid breathing and disorientation.

► Holly, mistletoe, poinsettias: These are poisonous. Symptoms include vomiting, bloody diarrhea and dehydration.

Christmas trees: Broken limbs can result from pets climbing and falling from the Christmas tree. Head injuries can be caused by a pet being hit by Christmas trees falling from their stands.

By being careful and observant, you may be able to prevent any of these injuries happening to your pet, then both of you can fully enjoy the holidays. Merry Christmas. Happy Hanukkah.

Sweet potato crop harvested and sold

MISSISSIPPI STATE—consumers should find plenty of sweet potatoes on the market this winter because northeast Mississippi farmers had good yields at harvest. State farmers averaged 200 bushels per acre on 5,000 acres of sweet potatoes despite dry weather and harvest problems. The 1986 statewide average was 175 bushels per acre.

"The quality on the crop we harvested is really good, especially the early potatoes," said Benny Graves, secretary-treasurer of the Sweet Potato Growers Association. "We were averaging 300 bushels to the acre on some of our early harvested fields."

Sweet potato harvesting began in mid-August and continued until the first fall freeze. The crop is grown commercially in northeast Mississippi, Calhoun and Chickasaw counties being the leading producers.

Producers are selling their top grade sweet potatoes for $10 to $12 a bushel to grocery stores. Premium potatoes harvested earlier this year were sold for $18 a bushel.

"Yields were good, prices are good and the potatoes are moving," said Joe Goforth, Calhoun County agent. "My producers are having to route as many potatoes as they can get their hands on to the grocery store."

Graves said producers had good results when they began digging the crop in late summer. "The last half of the crop was not quite as good as the first half because of the severe dry weather we've had since October," Graves said.

Soil in the potato fields toughened because the extended drought dried out the soil and harvesting became difficult. The dry soil caused many potatoes to skin when unearthed, making them unsuitable for storage. Those sweet potatoes had to be immediately sold.

Goforth said some producers paid more to harvest their fields because they had to water the ground before running their diggers.

Lung Disease: The Facts in 1987

Lung disease affects one in five Americans.

22 million Americans are afflicted with chronic respiratory disease.

This year 136,000 Americans will die from lung cancer. The mortality rate of lung cancer in American women has risen 380 percent in the last 35 years.

An estimated 8.6 million people have asthma.

Occupational lung disease still ranks as the number one cause of work-related disease and injury.

Respiratory diseases (including Sudden Infant Death Syndrome and Respiratory Disease Syndrome) are among the leading cause of death among infants less than one year of age.

Pneumonia is the leading cause of death by infectious disease in the U.S.

22.3 million Americans suffer from some form of chronic lung disease—including 11.6 million with chronic bronchitis and 2.1 million with emphysema.

Though tuberculosis is no longer a leading cause of death, TB still has yet to be eradicated.

The direct and indirect economic cost of respiratory illness to our nation adds up to $40.9 billion annually.

Much of the premature death and disability caused by lung disease is unnecessary and can be prevented. Cigarette smoking causes 80 to 90 percent of deaths from chronic obstructive pulmonary diseases such as emphysema and bronchitis.

The Mississippi Lung Association counts on continued support of Christmas Seal contributions to prevent, cure and control all lung diseases and eliminate some of their related causes, including smoking, air pollution and occupational lung hazards.

Many lung diseases are still not fully understood and require additional research to find improved means of prevention and treatment.

For information on lung diseases and Christmas Seal services, contact the Mississippi Lung Association, P.O. Box 9865, Jackson, MS 39208.

Suggestions for coping with holiday stress

Another holiday season is fast approaching, bringing feelings of pressure as well as feelings of happy anticipation. Christmas brings time pressure, money pressure and family pressure. No wonder the Christmas season rates 12 points on the Holmes-Rahe scale of stressful life events!

Among the people for whom Christmas is apt to be stressful are:

Working Mothers

Many spend 40 hours a week on the job and another 35 hours a week on household chores and then feel they must do all the holiday extras as well, such as decorating, baking, gift buying, card sending and entertaining. It's simply too much.

Young Families

Many are on a tight budget and winter fuel costs have made finances even tighter. Young families often feel they must buy gifts for an ever-growing list of people. They feel pressure from their children to buy every toy advertised on television. These expenses, plus entertaining costs, holiday phone bills and travel costs, push the credit cards to their maximum limit.

Older People

Those on fixed incomes still want to "do a little something" at Christmas for their children, grandchildren and even great-grandchildren. Their list increases but their resources do not.

Single Adults

For this group, it may seem that everyone else in the world is surrounded by loved ones and tradition during the holidays. For the person alone, Christmas may be a time of deep loneliness, even depression.

The stress felt by everyone may come from the mental image people have of what constitutes the ideal holiday. The image may be of a serene loving family gathered around a real Christmas tree, opening beautifully wrapped packages, before sitting down to a dining table that is heavy with casseroles and a perfectly roasted turkey.

Of course, reality may be that the parents are worried sick about the bills for the gifts, grandma is exhausted from the food preparation, and the teenagers would really like to be spending at least part of the day with their friends.

To take some of the stress out of the season, consider looking at your expectations (images) and bringing them in line with the realities of your life.

To bring ideals and reality closer together, increase your family communication. Try flexible approaches to gift giving, where to go for the holidays and who prepares the food. Just because people or tradition says a certain thing brings happiness does not mean it truly does. Evaluate as a family what really makes you happy at Christmas. Then plan to make this a Christmas of reality and love—not of wishes and stress.

WHAT IS A TOWN?

A town is a group of people.

It is schools
It is city government
It is churches
It is industry and jobs
It is retail businesses

They all have to work together. All must have the support of the people. Or there is no town.

Give your local merchant a chance for your business. You shouldn't spend your hard earned money with him unless his selection is adequate and his price competitive. But give him the first opportunity to make the sale.

For your local retailer pays the highest percentage of local taxes. He most often is the civic leader who dedicates his time and talents to his town. He is contacted first for contributions to charitable projects. He provides jobs.

Without his store you have no town.

Marshall scientists launch 2nd Supernova Balloon

Scientists from Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala. and Lockheed's Palo Alto (Calif.) Laboratory successfully launched the first of four planned balloon-borne investigations from Alice Springs, Australia, Oct. 29 to study Supernova 1987a (SN 1987a), an exploding star 170,000 light years from Earth.

The 28.4 million cubic-foot helium-filled balloon carrying a 1,500 pound scientific instrument package that could detect the first gamma ray line emissions from SN 1987a, lifted off at 3:21 a.m. (CST) Oct. 29 and rose to 130,000 feet. Scientists will analyze the results and have a preliminary report of their findings in about a month.

The scientists traveled to Australia on a similar scientific expedition last May but did not detect any gamma ray emissions from the supernova. This time, however, they are better equipped and will have a much better chance of detecting gamma rays from supernova 1987a, according to Dr. Gerald J. Fishman of Marshall's Space Science Laboratory, who is leading the Marshall scientific team to Australia.

Marshall scientists believe the supernova envelope has spread wider since the May balloon experiment and the expected radiation may now be observable, he said.

"We are excited that we will have a better chance to spot X-ray and gamma rays from the supernova. We will be flying higher and longer with an additional detection system and a better pointing system," said Fishman.

The Marshall team left for Australia Oct. 10. Their equipment was trucked to Atlanta, flown to Sydney, Australia, and then trucked overland to Alice Springs, located in central Australia.

"The winds will be a positive factor on this trip. In May, we had winds aloft up to 80 knots. For this launch, we are expecting only 10-20 knot winds. We had to bring the 1st balloon down after only nine hours of flight because it was nearing the east coast of Australia. This time we will be able to keep it aloft 20-40 hours, this gives us more time to view the supernova," said Fishman before leaving for Australia. Early reports from Australia indicate that the balloon stayed aloft for 38 hours.

Marshall is teaming with the Palo Alto Laboratory to conduct the study. Lockheed is providing the sensitive gamma ray detector and Marshall Center is supplying the gondola that carried the scientific equipment.

"There have been improvements in the Lockheed gamma ray detector pointing system," said Fishman. "Also, we have added two Burst and Transient Source Experiment (BATSE) developmental detectors to the Lockheed gamma-ray detector. These two improvements will assist us in detecting gamma rays," said Fishman.

The BATSE experiment is a gamma ray monitoring experiment designed primarily for the detection and detailed study of gamma ray bursts and other transient high-energy sources. Eight BATSE detectors will be positioned on NASA's Gamma Ray Observatory (GRO) that will be deployed in the future from the Space Shuttle.

The 20-story-tall, helium-filled balloon carrying the experiment package in Australia rose above most of the Earth's atmosphere and then pointed its instruments at the supernova to detect any possible gamma ray emissions. The instruments were also pointed at the Crab Nebula, a remnant of a supernova that occurred in the 1500's, which is a known gamma-ray emitter. During the expedition in May the balloon ascended to a height of 122,000 feet.

"Gamma rays can't penetrate the Earth's atmosphere; that's why we have to use high-altitude balloons to study them," said Fishman.

The supernova, located about 170,000 light years away is at a declination of 69 degrees south and can only be observed in the southern hemisphere. A single light year, the distance light travels in a year, equals 5.8 trillion miles.

NASA's Deep Space Network station near Canberra, Australia, configured with Australia's Parkes Radio Observatory, has been observing radio wave emissions from the supernova.

Members of the Australian expedition from Marshall include: Dr. Fishman, Dr. Robert B. Wilson, W. Thomas Sutherland, and Robert W. Austin.

The Marshall and Lockheed scientists form one of four teams that will conduct NASA-sponsored experiments from Alice Springs between now and December.

In addition to Marshall's balloon launch, three other NASA-sponsored balloon experiments will be conducted at Alice Springs this fall. Teams from the University of California-Riverside, California Institute of Technology and the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., will conduct those experiments.

NASA also plans to launch X-ray and ultraviolet experiments on sounding rockets from Woomera, Australia, about 600 miles south of Alice Springs, and to conduct infrared experiments from NASA's Kuiper Airborne Observatory (KAO), a converted C-141 jet cargo plane, from Christchurch, New Zealand, in November.

The KAO arrived in New Zealand Nov. 2. Expedition manager Louis Haughey of NASA's Ames Research Center, Calif., has planned eight flights in November.

Pennsylvania State University's sounding rocket experiment designed to search for X-ray emissions arrived at Woomera Oct. 28. Barring unforeseen obstacles, it will be launched Nov. 12, according to W.A. Brenne, the sounding rocket campaign manager for NASA at Woomera.

The balloon, sounding rocket and airborne campaign is a continuation of a two-year program that began in May to study SN 1987a. In April the KAO conducted observations of the supernova during flights from Christchurch and scientists at Alice Springs launched three successful balloon missions. At that time, scientists verified theoretical models which predicted X-rays and gamma rays were still being contained within the outer part of the star.

Since then, instruments aboard the Japanese satellite Ginga and aboard the Soviet space station Mir have detected hard X-rays from the supernova. As a result, scientists have theorized that gamma rays should begin to emerge from the supernova.

SN 1987a was discovered in February of this year from an observatory in Chile, with major confirmation from the Australian observatories at Siding Spring and Parkes and from NASA's International Ultraviolet Explorer satellite.

Dick Molpus is candidate for United States Senate

Mississippi Secretary of State Dick Molpus announced that he is running for the United States Senate as an "aggressive advocate of Mississippi's priority needs—improved economic opportunities for working men and women and better public schools for our children."

In a campaign swing across the state Molpus said, "I will be a can-do Senator who will bring strong leadership and a vigorous new vision to the United States Senate."

"I will plow a straight furrow, but I will also plow new ground. I will focus on what matters in our lives: jobs, first rate public schools for our children, a competitive work force, and expanding economic base, protection for the elderly and vulnerable, defending our country and saving tax dollars. That's what matters."

Molpus, who has served four years as Secretary of State, successfully managed a wide range of important federal programs as director of Federal-State Programs in Mississippi from 1980-1983.

During his tenure in that post Molpus helped secure and effectively target millions of dollars in federal monies for Mississippi in the areas of economic development, education and social programs while reducing staff positions by 25 percent.

Molpus was also a chief architect of the historic 1982 Education Reform Act which dramatically improved education for Mississippi's children by establishing a statewide system of kindergartens, reading aides, compulsory attendance, and a host of other crucial reforms.

Commenting on the reasons he entered the race Molpus said, "I have received overwhelming encouragement from people all across Mississippi to run. I entered public life in 1980 to serve Mississippi with all my might, energy and skill. I intend to run for the United States Senate with that same intensity so that I can continue to play a role that makes a significant difference in people's lives."

Molpus is married to the former Sally Nash of Corinth. They have two children.

Rains revive forage crops

MISSISSIPPI STATE—Mississippi farmers are a month behind in allowing livestock to graze on winter forages but rain and mild temperatures over Thanksgiving has improved the crop.

Dry weather kept many farmers from planting winter forage crops on time. Farmers who planted despite adverse weather had trouble getting the crop sprouted and established.

"Some of our farmers did not have rain from June until last week," said Dr. Lamar Kimbrough, an agronomist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service. "Usually we get some rain the first week in September but we've gotten the moisture now and things are improving."

The late November rains and mild temperatures in the 60s have encouraged growth in forage crops already planted, and many pastures could be lush and green in time for winter grazing.

Forage growth will relieve some farmers from feeding winter hay supplies to livestock, and possibly avert a hay shortage in the state. "Some cattlemen are getting some grazing even though they did not have the usual grazing in mid-November," Kimbrough said.

Despite improvement, the crop is small and vulnerable and needs protection from overgrazing. Continued mild weather and more moisture in the soil are needed in many areas of Mississippi for forages to grow well.

"Forage crops don't grow well at temperatures below 40 degrees," Kimbrough said.

Annuals (plants that grow in one season) used for forage crops in Mississippi include ryegrass, wheat, oats and some clovers.

Farmers are also growing tall fescue, a cool season perennial, for grazing. Several acres of fungus free fescue were seeded this fall.

In related agricultural news, harvesting of soybeans and cotton is finished.

Cotton producers in Sharkey County reported excellent yields, said county agent John Coccaro. "Cotton quality remained high throughout the season, and best of all, farmers were rewarded with high prices for their cotton," Coccaro said.

I've always liked lemon meringue pies—or any other lemon treat, and I'm equally fond of oranges, perhaps even more so—therefore you may be sure that I am indulging in all sorts of orange treats these days—why not, with the South Louisiana orange crop back again after that disastrous freeze four years ago?

There's something special and sweeter, to most of us, about those Louisiana oranges—and the recent Plaquemines Parish Fair and Orange Festival was a great success, proving this to fair goers' palates!

Farmers also showed off their new freeze protection systems, which had helped save the present crop during the severe cold of 1985—somewhat like an irrigation system, I am told by those who know far, far more about such technical systems than I—water is sprayed at the base of the trees to raise the temperature. You figure that out—I can't! My brain cells run more to history and Latin and French and reading and cooking and such.

At any rate, there's a sweeter than sweet crop of South Louisiana's oranges this season, even if it isn't very large, so, enjoy! This is the first year since 1983 that growers have enough oranges for sale and distribution in the state, not enough for outside markets, we are told.

The orange groves at Buras, La., below New Orleans, are a delight in the fall of the year, and well worth a trip down that way.

And, here's one of my favorite ways to use them up—here's:

SOUTH LOUISIANA
ORANGE MERINGUE PIE
1 cup chopped orange sections

2 Tbsp. grated orange rind
1 cup sugar
5 Tbsp. cornstarch
1 cup orange juice
3 beaten egg yolks
2 Tbsp. lemon juice
2 Tbsp. butter
3 beaten egg whites
2 Tbsp. sugar
Pie crust (your won or 'store bought')—baked

First, for the filling: Combine in a saucepan the orange juice, the orange sections and rind, the sugar and cornstarch, and cook, stirring the while, until the mixture bubbles up and then clears.

At this point, add the hot mixture to the three beaten egg yolks—in a slow, slow stream, beating constantly as you do so, lest the yolks cook into a scramble! Keep on cooking for a few minutes more, say five or so, over low, low heat, stirring and stirring.

Add the lemon juice and butter, and stir again. Now, pour the hot filling into the hot baked crust (don't wait for the pie shell to cool).

For the meringue: Beat the three egg whites stiff, blending in the two tablespoons of sugar. Spread over the pie and bake in a 350 degree oven until brown—then let it cool before cutting.

I like to embellish the pie further with chopped orange peel and even at times, orange sections. For more orange delights, try tiny orange muffins or orange-and-spice-pecans or orange and pecan pilaf or—oh, so many—but I've run out of space and time!

Middle-age spread isn't due to age

It's all part of getting older. Your metabolism slows down and your weight picks up. You have to exercise twice as hard as a young person to lose half the excess fat, right?

Wrong. Researchers at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Human Nutrition Research Center on Aging are debunking that myth. They found that the time people devote to aerobic exercise, not middle age, determines the fat level, said physiologist Carol N. Meredith at the center located at Tufts University in Boston.

Meredith said that it is generally assumed that, as people get older, something changes biologically to cause them to add fat and lose physical fitness and that exercise can't alter this trend. However, studies indicate otherwise.

To distinguish between the effects of aging and decreased physical activity, Meredith and colleagues compared the fitness level and exercise habits of 12 very active men—half in their twenties and half in their fifties. All had been running, cycling or rowing for at least two years.

It was found that their fat level had nothing to do with their age—only with the amount of time they spent exercising.

For example, one 54-year-old man who ran 14 hours a week had the same percent body fat as a 29-year-old who also trained 14 hours a week.

As a group, however, the middle-aged men had 77 percent more body fat than the young men "because they exercised fewer hours—7½ hours per week compared with 12½ for the younger men," said Meredith. "Time is the most important factor."

Fortunately, there appears to be a limit. After 12 hours per week, she said, fat reduction was less marked.

To be aerobic, exercise must be sustained more than 20 minutes at a time and involve large groups of muscles, as in running, brisk walking, cycling, rowing and swimming. Weight lifting, which targets specific muscle groups, is not aerobic.

Meredith said that aging itself seems to reduce voluntary movement. Scientists have noted this in animals and in primitive societies where sedentary jobs and "too little time" are not factors.

Five lettermen return for Coast Episcopal 1987 basketball season

The 1987-88 Coast Episcopal High School Raider basketball schedule is in full swing. For the first time, the team has depth with five returning lettermen.

Despite the 0-3 start, the Raiders are optimistic for this season and are looking forward to bringing home a few victories.

"The encouraging note is the number of players who will return next year as seasoned veterans," said coach Bill Riggs.

Seniors Chris Riggs, a three-year letterman, and Todd Purcell, playing his first year at Coast Episcopal High School, are providing the team leadership as co-captains.

Juniors Mike Kergosien, Rusty Roper, Chip Grant, and sophomore Billy Guice provide additional experience to the squad.

Newcomers, senior Jose Da Silva, juniors Sterling Thibodeaux and Jason Evans, sophomores Scott Hourin and Scott Covode, and freshman David Willis provide needed depth and the basis for a good program for the future.

Last, but not least, is returning eighth grade letterman Brandon Smith who provides the team with excellent ball handling abilities and a good perimeter threat.

For the first time Coast Episcopal High School has a boys junior varsity team. Led by ninth graders, David Williams, David Willis and Jesse Nicholson, the team is anticipating a good season. Eighth grader Brandon Smith contributes excellent ball handling skills while seventh graders Mark Catron, George Hlass, Nathan Guice and Erick Williams all show promise of improvement.

Parents and friends of Coast Episcopal are invited to see the Raiders play. All home games are played at the Long Beach Middle School gym on Cleveland Avenue.

Lady Raiders ready for 1987 season

The Coast Episcopal Lady Raiders, the 1987-88 regular season and Gulf States Conference Champions, have a full schedule ahead of them this season.

Returning lettermen for the girl's team are seniors Katherine Smith, Leah Salsbury, Kristin Catron, Sharon Orin, Lauren Gipson, and freshman Melissa Catron.

The Lady Raiders were undefeated in conference play last year and expect to sport a similar record this basketball season.

Other returning players include eighth graders Blair Shellnut and Angel Puckett. Several new players have made the squad this year which include seventh graders Megan Uram and Missy Mizell, freshman Candace Payne, and sophomore Ginny Edwards.

For the first year Coast Episcopal

High School has fielded a girl's junior varsity team. Players include Megan Uram, Missy Mizell, Blair Shellnut, Angel Puckett, Candace Payne, Melissa "Mikey" Catron, and Ginny Edwards. Only Catron has any real game experience, so playing J.V. games will give the other team members opportunities to gain a lot of playing experience.

1987-88 should be an exciting basketball season at Coast Episcopal High School. All parents and supporters are invited to see the Lady Raiders bring home another championship. Both of the Lady Raiders teams are led by Calvin Smith.

Parents and friends of Coast Episcopal are invited to see the Raiders play. All home games are played at the Long Beach Middle School gym on Cleveland Avenue.

Rocks defeat Mercy Cross 4-1 in soccer

The St. Stanislaus Rockchaw soccer team posted its second win last Friday over the Mercy Cross Crusaders in a varsity match played at Biloxi Stadium.

The Rocks jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the first half. Goals were scored by Tray Jones on a penalty kick, Mike Vegas and Terry LeBourgeois on a play off an indirect kick.

The Crusaders got their only goal late in the first half on a penalty kick.

In the second half, the Rocks cemented their victory as Michael Vegas scored on a corner kick from Troy Pepperman.

Coach Mick Quinlan was pleased with his team's effort, which raised their season record to 2-0-1. Their only tie was a 0-0 struggle with Hattiesburg.

"Our offensive movement off the ball was improved over the Hattiesburg tie. We concentrated on offense in the prior week's practice, and it appeared to have paid off," he said.

"Our real test will come in the next three games: Pascagoula (away) on Dec. 11, OLV (home) Dec. 14, and Ocean Springs (away) on Jan. 7. All three are solid, experienced clubs," Coach Quinlan said.

The Rockchaws are back in action this Friday as they travel to play Pascagoula Friday evening.

SSC players are Laurel tennis finalists

Two St. Stanislaus seventh grade students, Myron Labat Jr. and Manuel Gonzalez, made their presence felt this past weekend at the MTA Fall Circuit Tennis Tournament held in Laurel.

Labat, seeded second in the Boys' 12's Division, followed up a bye in the first round with three-set third round win over Abbey Patel of Forest (4-6, 6-4, 6-3).

The match with Greene was a three-hour affair in which both players used the entire court and every shot in their arsenals.

Labat was overcome in the championship match by hard-hitting Aaron Scott of Madison by a score of 6-3, 6-3.

Gonzalez, unseeded in the Boys 14's Division, defeated unseeded Charlie Mars of Laurel, second-seeded Charile Beasley of Gulfport—all in straight sets.

After losing the first set in the championship match to top-seeded Michael Haddox of Sumrall, Gonzalez seized control of the match in the second set and won top honors in the division with a 3-6, 6-2, 6-2 victory.

Both Labat and Gonzalez are members of this year's St. Stanislaus Junior Varsity tennis team, and when paired together they form a very respectable doubles team.

SSC Head Tennis Coach Myron Labat is extremely pleased with the progress of his two young charges over the course of the year.

"Both have worked really hard in practice and are now putting together some victories that should really boost their state rankings for 1988," said Labat.

The players now look forward to both the 1988 SSC Varsity Tennis season and the Mississippi Tennis Association Spring Circuit and Open Tournaments.

Outstanding SSC players

SHANNON GARRETT, left, and Joseph Lee, members of the St. Stanislaus varsity basketball team, were recently selected as members of the Catholic All-Tournament team following the recent tournament at Mercy Cross High School in Biloxi. Head Coach Chuck Genin said both players had played excellent offense and defense in all three games of the tournament.

SSC takes district win over East Central

The St. Stanislaus Rockchaws used the accurate three-point shooting of Yasin Shabazz to roll to a 59-51 victory over the visiting East Central Hornets Tuesday evening at Rockchaw gymnasium.

Shabazz scored 28 points to lead all scorers, with 14 of his points coming in the first quarter. The Rocks jumped out to an 8-0 lead, and maintained a comfortable lead throughout the contest.

SSC got rebounding help from forward Chad Matthews, who pulled down 19 rebounds and scored 13 points. Also scoring in double digits for the Rocks was Brian Alexander with 10 points.

The only East Central player to hit in double digits was Steve Porter who scored 15 points.

The Rocks hit eight out of 14 free throw attempts, while East Central was 11 for 19.

"I thought we played very well considering we had two starters out and two more playing this game ill," stated Head Coach Chuck Genin.

"Our defense is playing better every game and our rebounding is improving," he added.

Genin is also pleased with the individual performances of several of his players.

"Brian Alexander, Chad Matthews and Shannon Garrett have been clearing the boards consistently in our last three wins," Genin said.

"Yasin Shabazz did a great job both offensively and defensively last night. He has been out for a week and came on very strong tonight," concluded Coach Genin.

The Rockchaws are in action tonight (Thursday) when they face the tough Pass Christian Pirates in the d'Iberville tournament.

In the preliminary Junior Varsity game, the Rockchaws defeated East Central 54-40.

Leading the way for the Rocks were David Alexander with 16 points, Cedric Smith with 15 points, and Chris Perrone with 10 points.

GCRL funded for crab research

OCEAN SPRINGS—The Gulf Coast Research Laboratory has been awarded a grant of $104,136 for support of the second year of the project "Fisheries Development of the Deep-Sea Golden Crab, Geryon fenneri: Geographic and Seasonal Production Potential in the Gulf of Mexico."

The golden crab and its close relative, the red crab (Geryon quinqueatus) inhabit the deep water of the Gulf of Mexico. During the cruises of GCRL's research vessel Tommy Munro earlier this year, golden crabs were caught off the coast of Florida and red crabs off the coast of Alabama and Mississippi at depths of 270 fathoms (1,620 feet).

"The objective of the project is to foster a substantial commercial harvest of golden crabs in the Gulf of Mexico by answering questions of geographic, seasonal, and habitat differences in catch, abundance and reproductive output," said Perry.

Council to consider fishery issues in New Orleans

TAMPA Fla.—At its New Orleans area meeting on December 10, the Gulf of Mexico Fishery Management Council will review public comment and recommend federal rules for management of white shrimp, blue and white marlin, and sailfish.

The council will also review new stock assessment information on the Gulf red drum fishery and act on information which suggests the recreational fisheries for king and Spanish mackerel should be closed until July.

Final action on approval of federal plans to manage shrimp and billfish is scheduled for Wednesday morning.

The public may testify before the council on these plans.

On Wednesday afternoon the council will review new stock assessment information on red drum and consider committee recommendations for management of this fishery.

The public may also testify on these issues. On Thursday morning, the council will review data which indicate the recreational quotas of Gulf king and Spanish mackerels will be exceeded in December.

The council will consider action to close these fisheries. The commercial king mackerel fishery has already been closed in the western Gulf zone.

The council meeting will be held at the Sheraton Hotel on the Lake, 3838 North Causeway Boulevard, Metairie, La.

Council sessions will be Wednesday and Thursday, and committee sessions Monday and Tuesday. A copy of the agenda may be obtained by calling (813) 228-2815.

The Gulf of Mexico Fishery Management Council is one of eight regional fishery management councils which were established by the Magnuson Fishery Conservation and Management Act of 1976.

The Gulf of Mexico Fishery Management Council prepares fishery management plans which are designed to manage fishery resources in the 200-mile limit in the Gulf of Mexico.

State's wild turkeys radio whereabouts

By Troy Kight
Agricultural and Forestry
Experiment station

Wild turkeys equipped with radio transmitters are unwittingly broadcasting their whereabouts to a Mississippi wildlife researcher.

Dr. George Hurst, a wildlife and fisheries researcher with the Mississippi Agricultural and Forestry Experiment Station, is gathering data each year on the elusive birds so that wildlife officials eventually can better manage Mississippi's wild turkey population.

Hunters harvested 49,355 gobblers in 1986-87 in Mississippi from what may be the nation's largest wild turkey population.

Hurst explained that students under his direction monitor the wild turkey population on the Tallahala Wildlife Management area in Bienville National Forest in Jasper County. They trap the birds and strap a solar-or-battery-powered transmitter to each hen or gobbler's back and turn it loose. About 25 birds of each sex currently are carrying the transmitters.

After transmitters are mounted, the long chore of tracking the turkeys begins. A student drives to one of the many telemetry stations spaced out over the turkey range area—about 30 square miles. The student dials the frequency of a specific turkey, and checks the direction of the antenna on a receiver when the "beeps" received are loudest.

Hurrying to the next station and repeating the process, the student locates the turkey by triangulation—noting where the two direction lines intersect. He records that location on a map showing open spaces,

Problems with steel shot

Several hunters have noted problems with the wading from steel shot shotgun lodging in the barrels of their guns, according to the Department of Wildlife Conservation in Jackson.

This, say hunter safety officials, can create a dangerous situation.

The department contacted representatives from the ammunition industry and learned that the wad obstruction problems are usually caused by moisture getting inside the shotshell.

In the meantime hunters are cautioned to keep their ammunition as dry as possible and check their barrels for obstructions if they observe any unusual firing characteristics.

Be careful with the cold

The cold weather can kill. And hunters should know what can happen if they begin to get too cold, according to the Department of Wildlife Conservation.

Officials say that when internal body parts lose heat, hypothermia can occur.

Hypothermia is a condition in which the body loses heat faster than it can produce it. This causes a dangerous reduction of the body's internal temperature, state boating officials explain.

"This can be bad for lost hunters or waterfowlers after a boating accident in very cold water," executive director Vernon Beville said.

"With even minimal loss of internal body heat, people cannot think as well, and many body functions do not work as well. In short, we're asking hunters and anyone else out on the lakes, rivers, and reservoirs to be especially careful during the winter months."

Hypothermia can occur at temperatures as warm as 30 to 50 degrees Fahrenheit, particularly in combination with strong winds.

Second duck season opens Dec. 12

JACKSON—Mississippi's second waterfowl season gets underway this upcoming weekend, according to the state Department of Wildlife Conservation.

The popular shooting season opens Saturday, Dec. 12 and continues through Sunday, Jan. 17.

Shooting hours are one-half hour before sunrise until sunset, unless otherwise restricted in special areas.

Conservation enforcement authorities are reminding hunters that since waterfowl are migratory and protected by state and federal laws, hunters must have their shotguns plugged and incapable of holding more than three shells. And a possession limit is not permitted on the opening day of any season.

The point values on waterfowl harvest are the same this year as last year. Canvasback ducks may not be taken. The female mallard and black duck are 100-point birds. Seventy-point waterfowl include the redhead, wood duck and hooded merganser.

The mallard, pintail, mottled duck, ring-necked duck, and all ducks not specifically listed here are 35-point ducks. The 20-point birds are gadwall, teal, shoveler, scaup, merganser (except hooded) and wigeon.

The daily limit of 100 points is reached when the point value of the last bird taken is added to the sum of the point values of the other birds already taken during the day, and the total reaches or exceeds 100 points.

The possession limit is the maximum number of birds of species and sex which can be taken legally in two days.

One major feature of waterfowl hunting in the Magnolia State this year is that steel shot is required in all areas. Enforcement authorities caution hunters that they may not have lead shot in their possession while hunting.

Choose best clothing for hunting season

By Linda S. Moore
Cooperative Extension Service
Selection and care of comfortable hunting clothing may contribute to the amount of enjoyment Mississippi hunters experience this year.

Beth Duncan, clothing specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, said clothing worn for hunting requires special attention in two specific areas. First, it is important to consider comfort for any climate and all movement. Secondly, effective care for the hunting clothing will lengthen the lifetime of the garments.

Staying warm is one of the primary concerns for hunters. Duncan advocates wearing several layers of clothing, which will provide the hunter with a thermostat to aid in controlling his or her body temperature.

"You will stay warmer with several layers of lightweight garments than you will with one or two layers of heavy weight garments," the specialist said. "If you become too warm, remove a layer at a time."

Wearing a hat is also recommended since the majority of body heat is lost through the head. Turtlenecks or bandanas will also add warmth.

Wearing two pairs of socks will provide several benefits to the hunter.

"Wear one thin pair next to the skin made of a fiber such as polypropylene that will help keep moisture away from the feet. The second layer should be a bulkier wool sock," Duncan said.

She also recommended carrying an extra pair of socks to change into at midday. "This will add new life to weary feet," she said. An extra set of clothes may also come in handy later in the day if the first set gets wet.

"If you are going to be doing a lot of squatting or sitting, suspenders will be more comfortable than a belt," Duncan said.

After the average hunting expedition, a hunter may bring home more rips and stains in his or her hunting clothing than actual game. To lengthen the life of the garments, mend all tears and rips before cleaning, Duncan said.

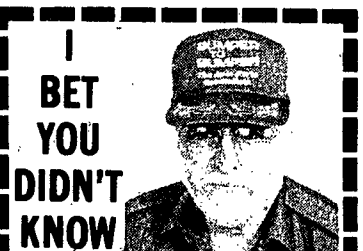

The clothing will launder better if burrs and excess mud are removed prior to washing.

"If the clothing is really soiled, use twice the amount of recommended detergent," she said.

Stains may provide a special challenge. Prompt removal is essential. "The longer a stain sits, the more it sets," Duncan said.

To remove fresh blood stains, soak in cold water for 30 minutes or longer. For dried blood stains, soak in warm water with a product containing enzymes. If stain remains after laundering, rewash using a bleach safe for fabric.

Paying attention to appropriate clothing selection and care should contribute to a more enjoyable day, especially if the game is not so cooperative.

Here's one that may surprise you. Did you know that John Madden, now a TV football announcer, but formerly coach of the Raiders in the NFL, won a higher percentage of games than the legendary Vince Lombardi. Here are their career records as head coaches in regular season games in the National Football League: Lombardi won 96 games, lost 34 and tied 6 for a percentage of .728. Madden won 103, lost 32 and tied 7 for a percentage of .750.

Of all the football stadiums in use in America today, which one is the oldest? Answer is Harvard Stadium, which has been used every year since 1903.

Did you know that 5 of today's National Football League teams had different nicknames when they started? The Washington Redskins original nickname was Braves. The New York Jets started as the Titans. The Chicago Bears first nickname was Staleys because they were sponsored by the Staley Starch Co. The Kansas City Chiefs' franchise originally was in Dallas where the team's nickname was Texans. And the Pittsburgh Steelers began in 1933 as the Pirates and didn't become known as the Steelers until 1940.

Canada, USM form friendship

Canadian Consul Aharon Mayne and University of Southern Mississippi President Aubrey K. Lucas exchanged gifts Wednesday as they launched plans for the beginning of Mississippi's first Canadian studies program.

Mayne, a representative of the Canadian Consulate General's Office in Atlanta, said a number of universities across the United States already offer Canadian studies, but until now there were no such programs in Mississippi.

"We think it's very important that great institutions like the University of Southern Mississippi join with other institutions in having a Canadian program," Mayne said, adding that his office chose USM as "the best place to go in Mississippi."

Some $200 million annually in trade between Mississippi and Canada made it desirable to seek a university in the state to nurture an understanding and appreciation for Canada, Mayne said. Also, he said some 41,000 jobs in the southeastern United States depend on exports to Canada.

Mayne presented Lucas with a Canadian flag for use on the campus, and Mayne was presented with a USM sweatshirt and a copy of the book, "An Anthology of Mississippi Writers," co-edited by USM English professor Noel K. Polk.

"This certainly bodes well for our relationship," Lucas said, accepting the flag. "We will be flying this flag at various places around the campus to emphasize our relationship."

Canadian Consulate public affairs officer Jeffrey Smith, Mayne and Marion Salinger of the Canadian Studies Center at Duke University met individually with USM faculty

Area scholars listed

The Dean's List at the University of Southern Mississippi's Gulf Park and Jackson County campuses for the 1987 fall term included a number of local scholars.

They are Curia Lorian, Mary Ellen K. Daman, Darrell Eugene Earwood, Paul Anthony Grego, Stephan Wingo Haas, Rodney Philip Keel, Tom Daniel Ketchum, Peter Clark King and Theresa Marie Ladner, all of Bay St. Louis.

Ladonna R. Floyd of Pearlington, Linda S. Ladner Vonantz of Waveland.

members who are interested in offering Canadian units within existing courses, as required to qualify for Canadian government assistance in acquiring library and source materials.

Dr. James L. Hall—an associate professor of radio, television and film who is coordinating USM's efforts in establishing the program—said he hopes it will encourage USM faculty to study in Canada and develop relationships with Canadian scholars.

"The reaction we've gotten from the academicians on your campus is that they want to know more about Canada," Mayne said.

The new program will complement USM's existing International Studies major, designed to prepare students for business or education careers in Asia, Europe or Latin America.

Revised conservation program targets youth

By Linda S. Moore
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

Building on the innate interests children have for firearms, Mississippi educators are using a successful wildlife shoot sports program as a spring board to build onto the public's awareness of conservation.

"This program helps youth see the soil as the provider of the oak tree, which in turn provides a home for the squirrels for the youths to hunt," said Jim Yonge, a 4-H Youth Development Specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

The 4-H Conservation of Natural Resources Program consists of Extension Service specialists and other public and private conservation organizations trying to mesh well-established youth programs into a concerted conservation effort. Programs being combined include the hunter education program and existing conservation programs in soil and water conservation, forestry and wildlife.

A wildlife judging program, which was piloted in the state's northwest district last year, will be expanded and continued next year on a statewide basis in conjunction with the conservation program.

The revised and expanded program will involve a natural educational process.

"First you get the kids interested by attracting them to the program by the shooting aspect," Yonge said. "Then, you progress into other aspects of conservation, such as wildlife, forestry and land."

Although an obvious goal of the program is to expand the 4-H program, another special feature of the program is the increased family involvement in a time when many families are under a great deal of stress.

An advantage of starting a program like this in Mississippi in 1987 was that hunter education classes are required before youths can obtain a hunting license.

The Extension Service, in cooperation with the National Rifle Association and the Hunter Education Division, is in the process of training men and women to be instructors in the shooting sports program. The program covers intense instruction and competition in rifle, shotgun, archery, black powder, hunting and outdoor skills.

Recognition of the need for increased involvement in the shooting sports program has attracted a number of qualified instructors to donate their time to train leaders.

"I didn't have anyone to teach me when I was young. That's basically why I got involved in this program," said Oree Parker, an NRA instructor who volunteered his time to train leaders. "We need more adults spending time teaching young people how to handle firearms safely and effectively."

"The children will take the hunter education classes, enjoy them and want more," Yonge said. He said the momentum from those classes are expected to carry over into the shooting sports program as well as the other aspects of the conservation program.

Dr. Ed Jones, wildlife specialist for the Extension Service, said he anticipates a good response to the wildlife judging portion of the program. Although a new program, which is not yet national, Mississippi placed second in the regional competition last year and plans to host the regional competition in 1988.

Jones and other wildlife specialists are in the process of a statewide training program for leaders to prepare youth to participate in the state and regional competition next spring and summer.

Participants compete in four categories in the wildlife judging competition. The first area is on-site habitat management recommendations that will require participants to survey a piece of property and indicate what could be done to make it suitable for various species.

Youths will do habitat evaluations based on aerial photographs and also identify various wildlife foods. Seniors will present a wildlife management plan for a specific area of land, indicating what could be done to make it suitable for specific wildlife.

Yonge said that specialists are hoping other areas of the program such as land judging and forestry judging will benefit from the momentum of the shooting sports program.

Bob Daniels, an Extension Service forestry specialist, said that expanding the existing forestry program into the conservation program will also provide the opportunity for further youth involvement in the 4-H forestry program. He considers this goal especially important since timber is one of the top three products in the state.

"It's important that our kids know about forestry," Daniels said. "I'm interested in increasing the amount of forest management that takes place on forest land and thereby increasing production. When timber production increases, our state income increases."

Soil Specialist Eddie Funderburg said the land judging portion of the program will remain essentially the same as in past years. Among other competitive areas, students will determine what would be the best use of the land, how suitable an area would be for various building projects or for crop or pasture land.

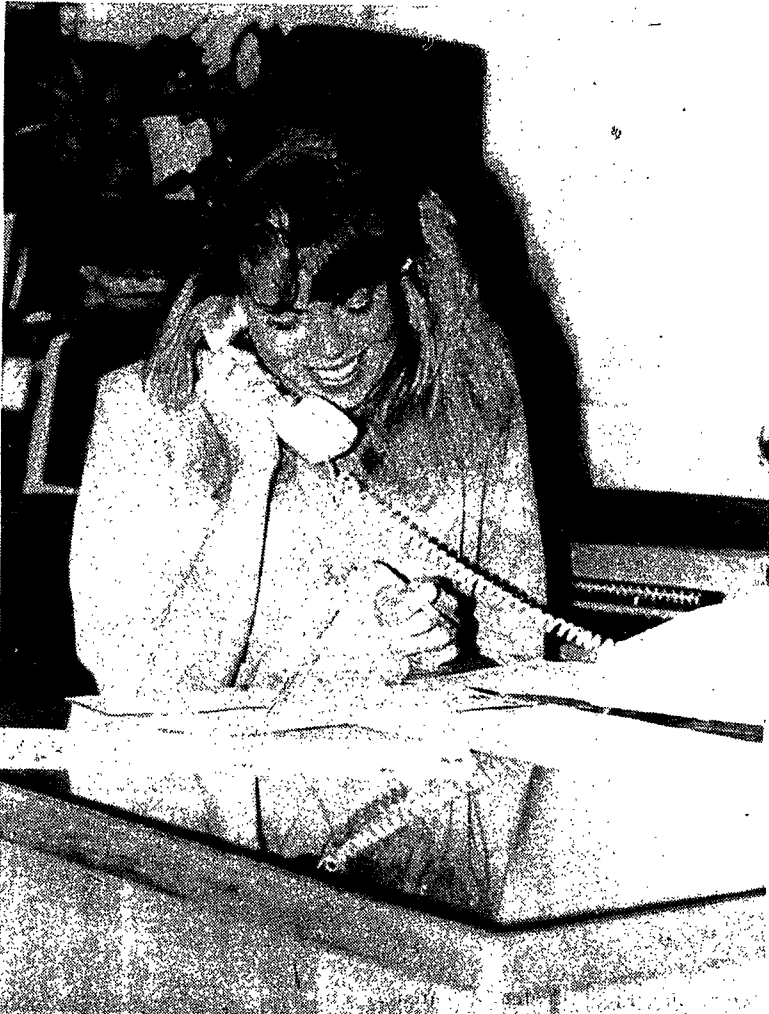

Conservation Field Days, which will be held April 16 in each of the state's four districts, will showcase the total program, Yonge said.

ETV Brief

"Asinamali" tells the story of the tragic Durban rent strike of 1983 as seen through the eyes of five prisoners. The prisoners, heads shaven and wearing shapeless prison clothes, recount through music, dance, comedy and drama, their own stories of life and imprisonment in South Africa.
